“removing the risk from IT projects”

What is your niche and what makes IMB Consulting different from other consultancies?

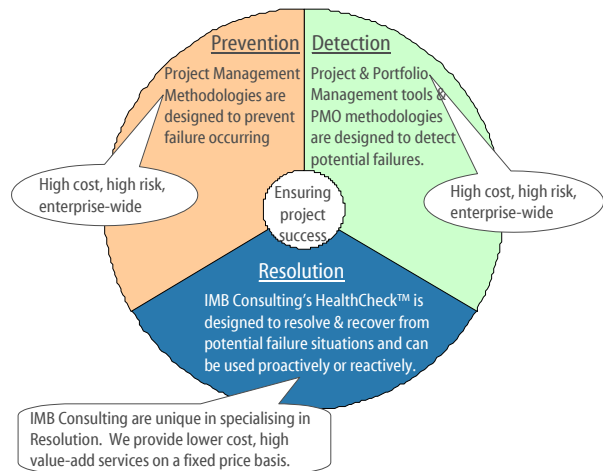

At IMB Consulting we are continuously researching the reasons why projects fail. With this knowledge one can begin to consider Prevention, Detection and Resolution.

Many consultancies offer methodology based solutions such as PRINCE2, RUP, Six Sigma – these are Prevention techniques. Others may propose setting up a PMO or implementing PPM tools – these are Detection approaches. We believe that these approaches do not sufficiently address the immediate problem.

Even with these Prevention & Detection approaches in place, there is still a high risk of failure. IMB Consulting is unique in primarily addressing Resolution techniques (although we also assist in the other areas).

We understand the reasons why projects fail and with this insight we will diagnose root causes and identify strategies for resolution that will ensure the delivery of business benefits.

“If two out of three projects fail, then what can we do?”

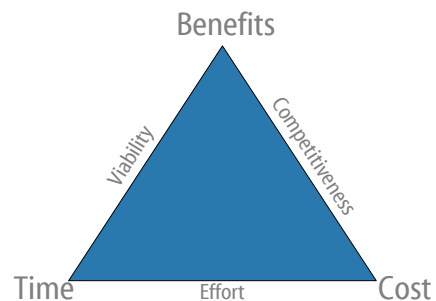

Theory of Triple Constraints

The Theory of Triple Constraints is described by Quality gurus as the “Time, Cost, Quality” triangle. We disagree with this description because it tends to forget that Time and Cost are also measures of Quality.

More common is the reference to the “Time, Cost, Scope” triangle. Whilst this is a better definition, it ignores the crucial factor regarding delivery of business benefits i.e. delivery of Scope does not necessarily equal delivery of Benefits.

At IMB Consulting we refer to the Theory of Triple Constraints as the “Time, Cost, Benefits” triangle and this ensures that we keep our eye on the benefits and every element of scope is related back to the benefit it delivers.
